outside. His family was very important, especially his love for his daughter Primrose. Andrew was always helpful, his family and friends knew they could count on him, if needed. He had a goofy and joyous sense of humor. He also had a talent for fixing things, and building things, which he inherited from his father. Andrew will be missed so very much, and we hope he has found the peace he so desperately sought. We will always love him, pray for him, forgive him, and look forward to the day we meet him again.
