She found so much joy in telling people of her many experiences of riding elephants, her two photo safaris to Nepal and Africa where she rode an outrigger surrounded by crocodiles, shopping sprees to Bangkok, haggling and bargaining at different markets throughout the world, her travels to Australia and New Zealand, experiencing the local cuisines (sometimes eating without being sure what she was eating), sleeping in everything from five-star hotels to treehouses, and taking the Rhine River and Alaskan cruises. Bobbie also enjoyed RVing where she visited all fifty states in the United States including driving to Alaska where she visited family and friends.

Bobbie was preceded in death by her parents; her infant daughter; her brother, Langford Sandel; her brothers-in-law, Louis Thiele, Melvin Kennedy, and Elliot Hunt; and her sister-in-law, Blanche Sandel.

“ Bobbie and family visited with us in Germany in the 1980s. I didn't really know them then but they were family and we were happy to have family visit. We had a great time playing Texas canasta. We got to know each other and had a great time loving and laughing. Our prayers are with you all at this difficult time.
