“ I remember in the 90’s, I was a new believer in Christ but Johnny wasn’t yet. We had some great debates on some of those oilfield locations as I shared the change brought about in my life. On one occasion I gave Johnny a new bible and asked him to read it for himself. A year or so later he called me, all excited, because he was going to preach at Faith Baptist and wanted me to be there. Tears came to my eyes as he stood behind the pulpit, with that same bible, it’s pages stained from grease and crude oil from his often reading, and brought forth the Word of God. I’ll see you soon my friend. Terry Dean
